TALENT STUNG WHEN CHELSEA STABLE WON BENNINGS CUP RACE

Tucker Boys Ride Fancy Bird and Beggarman in Amateur Event and Finish 1-2, the Play Being on Other Entries.

BY VINCENT TREANOR.
(Special to The Evening World.)

BENNINGS RACE TRACK, D. C., April 8.—The result of the Amateur Cup race was a crowning victory for the Tucker family, of Philadelphia. J. Tucker rode the winner, Fancy Bird, and his brother, E. Tucker, finished second on Beggarman. The pair was coupled as the Chelsea Stable entry.

The Tucker boys, in addition to the purse, were presented with silver cups; the first of the value of $150 and the second of $75. James Crawford was the third horse.

The success of the Chelsea stable was a stunning blow to the talent, but a godsend to the laymen. The books were loaded up with Bellwether and James Crawford money. The former was added. Between the pair it was hard for the bettors to make a selection, but Bellwether finally went to the post favorite. There was a scattering play a nine stable and Ferry Landing, but the stable went back in the market, so it may be imagined the play on it was light and of the piker variety.

Had either Bellwether or James Crawford won $75,000 would not have paid the winning bets. No wonder the books were so loaded. The Tucker boys and Beggarman made all the difference. The Chelsea Stable was last on the far turn. In the stretch, however, he came from the off verbal nowhere, and won easily. James Crawford was very poorly handled and ran a great race.

Big Field Delays Start.
The big field of maidens in the opening event was at the post twelve minutes before being sent away. Part of this delay was due to Miss Cushman throwing her boy, Alex, and running away. She was caught and brought back. The race resulted in a big coup for Lykers. This was one of the best things of the day. Little Lucille took no chances of losing. Although eight lengths in front he rode as if his life depended on it. Woodspun, ridden by J. B. Brien, was the next best. Lucille R. won second race.

Lucille R. Won Second Race.
Woods Garth scratched. Hawking in the two-year-old selling event and depended on Lucille R. with C. Brien. He won. Lucille R. was the only one to win. Lucille R. was the only one to win. Lucille R. was the only one to win.

Banyah in a Canter.
Banyah, at odds on, won the third race breathing fire. He went to the front at the turn and never was in danger thereafter. Azure Maid was only second two lengths in front of Bob Callahan. Banyah was considered a good thing and a lot of money was bet on him at the probable price. The biggest bet was made on Bob Callahan for the place. All the wise men went to the latter with big chunks of money.

More Cups for Jockeys.
There were two silver cups to finish the first and second jockeys to finish in the Chey Chase, and as in the American Cup, the coupled entry Pete Daley, ridden by Courtland Smith, and My Grace, ridden by J. B. Brien, won the trophies. The riders were hunting costumes of red, and were hard to distinguish during the field passed the stand. Except when the field passed the stand. There were only two falls, Fauquier and Kitty Bellard. The riders were unhurt.

ECZEMA QUICKLY CURED.
Simple Test Fully Demonstrates Merits of New Discovery.
The dispensing of psalm, the new cure for eczema and other skin affections, depend almost entirely, in making known its merits, upon the wonderful results which they demonstrate through experimental samples which are sent free by mail to all who write to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West 25th street, New York City.

Better still, the 50-cent package now on sale at Riker's, Hegen's and other leading drug stores in New York and Brooklyn, tells the whole story and is usually sufficient to cure minor skin troubles such as pimples, rash, herpes, complexion blemishes, scaly scalp, etc. In eczema cases psalm stops the itching with first application, proceeds to heal immediately and cures chronic cases in two weeks.

CONVICT OUT OF PRISON A DAY KILLS MOTHER

Planned to Wipe Out Entire Family for Fancied Wrong.

Bernard Carlin, released from Napanoch Prison yesterday, walked into his mother's home at No. 387 Quincy street, Brooklyn, this afternoon and shot her dead. He was captured in the street after a fierce fight by three citizens, and announced that he would have killed his sister, too, but for the fact that when he reached the house he had only one revolver.

"They let me go to prison," said Carlin, "when they could have saved me. I intended to kill the whole damned family."

The murderer is twenty-two years old and has been a thief from boyhood. His family cast him off long ago. On March 24, 1906, he was sentenced by Judge Aspinall in the Brooklyn County Court to a term in Napanoch prison for grand larceny.

Entire Family in Peril.
The term expired yesterday, and Carlin, with a small sum of money in his pocket, came to New York bent upon killing his mother, his sister, Mrs. Powers, and his brother Anthony, all of whom lived in an apartment on the first floor of the house at the Quincy street address. He bought a revolver in a Bowery pawnshop yesterday evening and slept in a Bowery lodging-house over night.

In the morning he fortified himself with Bowery whiskey, and shortly before noon started for his mother's home in Brooklyn. He was not a welcome visitor, and his reception was anything but cordial.

At the time of his arrival his mother and his sister, Mrs. Powers, were in the kitchen. He and his brother were in the bathroom. Mrs. Powers was carrying her baby, a few months old, in her arms. After a few minutes of conversation Carlin asked his mother to step into the parlor, saying he wanted to talk to her alone.

Cartridges All Fired.
That he contemplated violence was not dreamed by any member of the family, although they knew that he had a murderous temper. Mrs. Powers heard some of the conversation in the parlor between the mother and her convict son.

"My eyes went back on me in prison," declared Carlin, "and it's your fault. You going blind?"

The mother made some remark that Mrs. Powers did not hear. Carlin drew a revolver, pointed it at his frightened parent and fired. The first bullet pierced her brain and she fell to the floor. Carlin stood over her and pumped four more bullets into her lifeless body. As he fired the last shot Mrs. Powers rushed into the room, pointing the pistol at her. Carlin pulled the trigger half a dozen times. Then realizing that the weapon was empty, he threw it on the floor and rushed from the house, just as his brother, who had rushed from the bathroom, made a grab at him.

STAMPEDE IN SCHOOL; MANY CHILDREN HURT

Frantic Newark Mothers, in Fear of Black Hand, Start a Panic.

Scores of children were slightly injured and two little girls were badly trampled in a panic at the Seventh Avenue School in Newark to-day, due to the circulation of a rumor that the school was to be blown up by the Black Hand.

For several days past Black Hand letters have been received by parents and also by teachers. The teachers recognized some of the letters as the work of mischievous scholars, but the mothers and fathers, the majority of them foreigners recently from Italy and Southern Europe, believed them to be genuine threats from the dreaded society.

Though the children went to school the same as usual, scores of parents accompanied them. This was also the case with three other Newark schools, one at Franklin, another at Morton and a third at Jones street.

But it was only in the Seventh avenue school that the principal called upon the police to drive the mothers away. They had brought their children to school but refused to leave the neighborhood. Their chattering and jabbering drew a crowd and caused the dissemination of many wild rumors.

Women Overwhelm Police.
As the windows of the schools were open on the Seventh avenue side the pupils could hear the cries and shouts of the excited women, and this caused uneasiness in the classrooms. Finally Principal McAuliffe became alarmed and telephoned to Police Headquarters.

Capt. Brown, of the Second Precinct, found forty mothers gesticulating at the entrance, and with a squad of men drove them away. This only served to increase their hysteria, however, and also to arouse the region about the school.

Scores of mothers poured into the street from neighboring tenements and the little band of police were swept off their feet.

Fire Drill Useless.
There was a rush to the doors of the school and the principal felt that it would be useless to continue school any longer. Several classes were already in ferment. Using the fire drill, an effort was made to get the 1,200 scholars out class by class. The hysteria of the mothers at the entrance spread to the pupils within, however, and presently there was a mad stampede.

The mothers rushed in as the children rushed out, and the confusion became a serious menace to life. Many children were being trampled when the reserves rushed to the doors and swept the mothers away, allowing a free exit for the panic-stricken children.

One Victim May Die.
The two children who were so badly hurt that they were taken to St. Michael's Hospital are Antoinette Eugenio, thirteen years old, of No. 40 Garfield street, and Attilia Ciccone, eleven years old, of No. 7 Garfield street. Little Antoinette was badly crushed and may die, and the other child's eye was torn and her body lacerated and bruised.

Black Hand letters were reported to have been received to-day at the Market and Morton street schools, all of the letters threatening that the schools would be blown up. When the teachers sifted these rumors down they learned that the father of a child in South Market street had received a black bordered letter from Switzerland.

ALBANY, April 8.—The Anti-Gambling Race Track bill was killed in the Senate late this afternoon.

The vote was a tie, 25 to 25.

As the Lieutenant-Governor, who is the presiding officer of the Senate, cannot cast the deciding vote on a bill, the measure advocated by Gov. Hughes to end betting on the turf in this State, was consequently defeated.

Twenty-six votes were necessary to pass the act, and that number had been claimed by Senators Raines and Agnew, who led the anti-gambling forces. The racing men had declared all during to-day's session of the Senate that they would at least have twenty-five votes, and they made good their prediction.

Fuller and Taylor, Democrats, voted with the Hughes forces, for the bills, while Burr, Emerson, Gilchrist, Cassidy, Wemple, Grattan, Knapp and Wilcox, Republicans, cast their ballots with the racing contingent, and against the bill.

CHANLER STEPS IN.

While Lieut.-Gov. Chanler has no vote on the final passage of a bill but can vote on a motion, asked the roll call on the Raines motion, made early in the fight to lay the bill on the table. It resulted in a tie, as did the roll call on the motion to pass the bill. The Lieutenant-Governor, therefore, cast the deciding vote in favor of the Raines motion, so that it was carried by a vote of 26 to 25.

This means that Senator Agnew can call up his motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill failed to pass, at any time. He must give such notice within three days. He said this evening that he would give his notice to-morrow.

Gov. Hughes was deeply chagrined when told of the failure of the bills to pass. He said he had no comment to make at this time.

Senator McCarren and the race-track men were jubilant at the result of the vote.

"The bills are dead," said McCarren, "and will not be resurrected. An extra session will not make any difference, but I don't believe there will be one. The Governor has been beaten."

Kidnapping was added to the evil acts charged to the race track men in the effort to defeat the bills. The reformers made the charge, and Senator Fancher was held up as the victim.

While the racing contingent was claiming Grattan, Knapp, Cassidy and Wilcox as sure converts to their cause, whose votes would at least insure a tie vote and the consequent defeat of the bills, the reformers were thrown into a panic by the discovery that Fancher, who was one of their own, was absent from the Senate.

Scouts were sent out to hunt up the missing man, but no trace of him could be found, and Republican Leader Raines, desperate and with
